Re: LMS Recognized for 10th Year as Best Place to Work in Vermont

LMS again named a Best Place to Work in Vermont

(GEORGIA, VT – 17 February) – Liquid Measurement Systems, Inc. (LMS) has been named one of the 2023 Best Places to Work in Vermont. The program is sponsored by Vermont Business Magazine, the Vermont Chamber of Commerce, the Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) - Vermont State Council, and the VT Department of Economic Development. It is managed by Workforce Research Group.

This is the tenth year that LMS has made the list.

LMS President Scott Fewell, said, “This honor is a tribute to our employees and their commitment to the LMS community. Our highest priority at LMS is to maintain an employee experience that genuinely reflects core Vermont values, while remaining competitive in the global aerospace industry.”

Fewell continued, “At LMS, we strive to create an environment that satisfies our employees’ appetite for growth, personal satisfaction, and a human connection. They take ownership of their work and consistently deliver exceptional results for our customers.”

To earn the Best Places to Work designation, companies from across the state enter a two-part survey process. The first part – worth approximately 20% of the score -- evaluates the company’s policies, practices, philosophy, systems, and demographics. The second part – worth approximately 80% -- is a detailed survey completed by employees that measures their satisfaction across a broad range of metrics. The combined scores determine which companies earn recognition as a Best Place to Work in Vermont.

LMS is a growing company with a big mission: to deliver best-in-industry fuel measurement & management solutions for aerospace and defense applications. More at www.liquidmeasurement.com
